8	The company is considering opening a new factory. At a meeting this is discussed and there are two main opinions: One group wants to expand the existing factory in Germany, The other group wants to open a factory in India because it will be cheaper to manufacture the clothing there.
	After a heated discussion the meeting is in its final stages.	1
Mr. James	It seems to be clear that the best option will be to expand our existing facilities in Germany.
Mr. Grev	No, Mister Chairman, I do not agree with that opinion. That is a stupid idea.
	A heated discussion takes place.	2
Miss Smith	Mister Chairman, these discussions lead nowhere. I propose that we put this matter to a vote.
Mr. Grev	I agree, mister Chairman, and would like to propose that we expand our factory in Germany.
	There is a sudden silence. Miss Cagney raises her hand.	3

Miss Rudoln	That's not fair!
Chairman	Well, I'm for Germany. Quality counts. And we can't guarantee that in India.
	The members express their displeasure and start arguing. The chairman hits with his gavel on the desk.	12
Chairman	Order! Order please! Please calm down. We can talk later about the details. I herewith close the meeting. Annoyed That making is off the table.
Mr Grev	That means India is off the table. Damn!
